

The Inner Coach

A Clear & Present Vision

Keith Collins

A Clear & Present Vision requires my vision to have direction, my purpose to have clarity and my mission to be present:

The Presence of my Mission is essential.

My Mission is ever present.

It is forever being presented to my Self.

I have a choice to accept it or not.

It is my present from my Soul.

It is my gift to my Self.

When I have Presence, I accept my gift with gratitude.

I can only accept my mission in the present.

I receive my orders on a day to day basis.

Taking my mission a day at a time puts it into order.

It is always presented at the right place and in divine time.

My orders are my direction.

I always have a choice of how I receive them.

When I receive my direction with clarity & presence, there is no confusion, there is no frustration and I am never lost.

My mission is to have the presence to accept it with faith, and the faith to accept it as it is presented.

The Clarity of my Purpose has great emotional power.

With great power, I have purpose and I am clear on my purpose; my purpose is clear.

It requires emotional power to have purpose.

With emotional power, I feel the measure of my purpose.

Without power, my purpose is unclear.

It is clear that my purpose is to align with my emotional power.

I align with my emotional power by being who I really am.

I disconnect from my purpose when I am not reflecting my Soul with clarity.

A lack of power and a lack of purpose causes confusion in my Self.

I travel with purpose when my inspiration and my aspiration are empowered.

I am inspired by my purpose and I aspire to fulfil my purpose to be who my Soul has chosen me to be.

My Vision is my Direction.

The question is: "What direction is the direction of my vision?"

My vision is vital to my journey.

It aligns me on my path in life.

It is the direction of my life-path.

It is like a compass point.

It shows the way of my Soul.

No matter how far I travel on the path of my Soul, my vision remains there to guide me.

My vision shows me the way.

My directions come as messages.

When I hear my messages, I see my direction, I know my vision and my path is illuminated.

The messages may differ and the direction may alter but my vision remains the same.

My messages appear when I am apparently off-track.

The direction of my vision keeps me on-track.

With clarity, direction & presence, I know that I am on track.

When confused, lost & frustrated, I know that I am not.

Keith Collins

The Inner Coach

September 2013

theinnercoach@me.com

<http://www.theinnercoach.eu>