

Three Realities of Perspective

The Reality of Man

The reality is that Man has relative choice.

The reality of each individual human Being is a relative choice and is relative to that choice.

The choice of each human Being is relative to their personal perspective.

The perspective of each human Being is relative to their belief system.

The beliefs that each human Being holds are relative to their experience.

The experience of each human Being is relative to their perception of that experience.

The perception of the experience of each human Being is relative to their reality.

Perspective is relative to perception and is the individual choice of each human Being.

The current reality is that the majority of people alive today have suppressed their own perceptions in favour of another's perspective.

The Reality of Animals

The reality of animals is Instinctive.

Animals instinctively know the reality of their experience.

Animals react instinctively, not rationally.

They have no ability of rational choice.

Whichever way they act or respond, it is instinctive.

They have no relative choice or dominion.

Dominion is the providence of Man not animals.

Animals have no conscious choice to make.

They have no option but to follow their instinct.

Their instinct is there to guide their path.

It is not possible for an animal to override its instinct and not behave instinctively, unless it has been trained by Man to do so.

When an animal responds to a Man's command it is doing so because of Man's choice, not their own choice.

The ability to consciously choose a variety of choices is Man's Dominion over the animals.

The Reality of an Enlightened Being

An Enlightened Being knows that their reality is of their own creation.

They know that they are responsible for their own reality and they create and own their reality responsibly.

Creating reality irresponsibly is the choice of an un-enlightened Being.

There is always a reason behind the manifestation of whatever occurs.

Nothing occurs by accident, even when an accident appears to occur.

An enlightened Being acts intuitively.

An intuitive response is never a negative reaction.

Because an enlightened Being creates their own reality knowingly, they can knowingly re-create their reality in better and better ways.

An enlightened Being comes into this reality to create a better reality.

The reality of being better is continuous Self development & Spiritual growth.

Being enlightened is a continual process, infinitely, eternally & indefinitely.

Keith Collins

The Inner Coach

December 2012

theinnercoach@me.com

<http://www.theinnercoach.eu>